Storyscript for Billy Goats Gruff

Once upon a time there were three billy goats. Big Billy Goat Gruff, Medium-size Billy Goat Gruff, Small Billy Goat Gruff. They lived in a big field, near a deep river. They loved to eat grass. Green, green grass. The greenest grass of all grew on the other side of the river. There was a narrow bridge across the river.

One day Small Billy Goat Gruff decided to cross the bridge. Now, an ugly troll lived under the bridge. The troll heard Small Billy Goat Gruff walking on the bridge, trip, trap, trip, trap. 'Who's walking on my bridge?', he shouted. And he jumped onto the bridge. He stood in front of Small Billy Goat Gruff. 'I'm going to eat you,' he said to Small Billy Goat Gruff. 'Don't eat me, I'm too small,' said Small Billy Goat Gruff. 'Eat my brother, Medium-size Billy Goat Gruff. He's much bigger than me.' The troll looked at Small Billy Goat Gruff. 'You're right. You're too small to eat.' And he let Small Billy Goat Gruff cross the bridge. Trip, trap, trip, trap.

Medium-size Billy Goat Gruff saw his brother eating the green, green grass. He decided to cross the bridge. The troll heard Medium-size Billy Goat Gruff walking on the bridge, trip, trap, trip, trap. 'Who's walking on my bridge?', he shouted. And he jumped onto the bridge. He stood in front of Medium-size Billy Goat Gruff. 'I'm going to eat you,' he said. 'Don't eat me, I'm too small,' said Medium-size Billy Goat Gruff. 'Eat my brother, Big Billy Goat Gruff. He's much bigger than me.' The troll looked at Medium-size Billy Goat Gruff. 'You're right.
